A Whale of a Whale

The writer of this article did not see the massive whale at Moss Beach, but many Carmelites did. Michael Williams was there when the monster was landed, and wrote an excellent account of the event for the Examiner. Louis Slevin was on hand with his camera and has on sale some excellent pictures of the affair. Several other parties drove over on Sunday and saw portions of the big fish. It was then being cut up.

"How big is he?" was asked an Italian fisherman at Monterey. He hesitated a while, then said "You know Custom House-a? — well, about so long—70 feet; he weigh 60 ton; much-a oil, much-a meat."

The establishment of this whaling station at Moss Beach is in the nature of history repeating itself. There are well authenticated records and other evidences to show that at one time there was a whaling station at Point Lobos. Visitors there may yet see the mounted skeleton of a great whale.

Experiences of a Carmel "Y" Man in France

Perry Newberry Writes Interesting Account of His Work and Observations

EIGHTH LETTER

Aubepierre, France,
December 10, 1918.

Back in S. O. S., which means beds, roofs, windows and civilized life, also a big "Y" hut and lots to do. No fun, just work. I'd trade every comfort here to hear the shells whiz over and burst or a Jerry plane on a night bombing raid.

Shave every other day, now, altho I have established a reputation which saves me from many of the frills and furbishings of the officers and men. I am an eccentric as to uniform and boots. Buttons off or mud on are excusable in me.

I am billited in a large bright room, alone. A bed with white sheets, a little stove, a writing desk, bureau, washstand, and several chairs. And there's a woman to look after everything. A pleasant, comfortable room, with my captain and lieutenant in adjoining rooms.

The "Y" hut is a large barracks with dirt floor and oiled paper windows. There are benches and tables, and I have had built a stage and fireplace. I have also wired it and have electric lights. We put on three to six shows a week, some with local talent, some sent to us.

I have three men detailed to me, a cashier, a bookkeeper, a warehouse man, besides a detail man to clean me up every morning. It is like running a business and I'm the manager. It is hard work, and I neve, did like business anyhow. However, I can stand it for the balance of our stay.

I eat at officers mess—and would much prefer to buck the mess line with the boys. I'm losing touch with my friends of Supply company. Heard today that Bill Hawkins was in the hospital threatened with pneumonia. Think of me not knowing that Bill was sick!

But I have 1500 boys to look after now, besides the officers. They all know me and I know about half of them by name. When they get into trouble they send for me. They show me their photos of ma, pa, wife, baby and girl, and read me extracts from their home letters.

This a beautiful French village outside the threat of war. Houses are whole, tho old. There is glass in the window-frames. The tile roofs are all on, and the stone sidewalks are not shell shattered. Most of the men, except the very old, are still in the army, but there are plenty of healthy peasant women in wooden shoes.

The winter is some colder than California, but similar, rain intermingled with sunshine. It seldom snows here—too far south. Plenty of magazines to read, all from one to three months old. We take the Paris edition of the New York Herald, so get some news—live—of the outside world.

But believe me, I either want real war or peaceful Carmel. This intermediate business of squads right and mess-kit inspection makes no appeal to me. I want to get home.

WEEKLY GREETING

Perhaps nothing else gives a man more pure joy than to have some choice morsel of his wit treasured in the memory of another.—Albert P. Terhune.

Reserve Your Verdict

Because, in the administration and conduct of the vast undertakings of the Y.M.C.A., certain individuals and sections of the organization have made mistakes, it is not the part of wisdom, nor is it charitable, to condemn the entire body.

It is true that in the hurry and confusion incident to the gathering together of men to minister to the needs of the soldiers mistakes were made. Often the wrong man was selected for a job; again, in many cases, the right man was not available.

Charges of graft we take no stock in. Every dollar contributed, says John R. Mott, has been accounted for—and we believe him.

The inquiry to be undertaken by the War Department will clear up many things. Notwithstanding interviews given out by discredited preachers and anonomous letters sent to the editor of this paper, we refuse to condemn the whole organization.

Poor Bill

As the varjous weekly and monthly publications, contain-articles extolling the virtues of Theodore Roosevelt, come to hand, one is reminded of "Bill" Stone's attack upon the Colonel in the United States Senate some months ago.

Writers seem to vie with each other in setting forth Mr. Roosevelt's uncompromising Americanism. Yet Senator "Bill" said that Roosevelt was the best ally the Kaiser had in America.

If Stone were alive today he would feel about as big as a peanut.

A Notable Book

LYRIC EXPRESSION OF A NEARLY VANISHED RACE

A VOLUME of particular interest to Carmelites is "The Path on the Rainbow," the book of Indian poems edited by Geo. W. Cronyn.

In general, of course, all that pertains to the life of the early inhabitants of our country is worth while, and to all readers of poetry the first authentic collection of Indian verse and interpretations is of value. When the book contains fourteen poems by Constance Skinner, author of the first play given in our Forest Theatre, as well as her essay on "The Indian as Poet," and eight poems by Mary Austin, author of "Fire" and "The Arrow Maker," as well as an introduction by her, Carmel should surely be glad of this book from the press of Boni & Liveright, the up-to-date publishers of the Modern Library

To the lover of poetry the original Indian songs should be of great interest, being as they are the lyric expression of a nearly vanished race; but to the general reader the parts of the book which will give the greatest pleasure are the interpretations by Constance Skinner and Mary Austin, and the prose essays of these two, which open and close the book. Such a poem as Miss Skinner's "Autumn Dawn" (Plem-Salia-Kwi), is alone worth the cost of the book, which, by the way, is remarkably well printed, on excellent paper (a rare thing these days), and bound in a rich cover of black and gold.

Mrs. Austin's "Song for the Passing of Beautiful Women" is a fine and very human interpretation from the Paiute, and the "Song in Time of Depression" has a haunting quality. Her "Song of the Hills" is redolent of the stern beauty of earth and love that might have been.

Mrs. Austin's introduction, like Miss Skinner's conclusion to the book, shows a true knowledge of Indian life and character, and a keen insight into the mind of the aboriginal man and woman as expressed in their songs and dances

Miss Skinner has struck a sure chord in her song of the old chief who watches the progress of the conquerer and the passing of his own race with a feeling that perhaps something big and fine is lost in the march of civilization:

"Here was I chief ere the coming of the white man;
Now is his village spread from this sea beyond my sight.
His canoes are floating villages;
They go by with a great noise and a black smoke.
His deeds are mighty; they leap with roaring clouds and thunder fires
Into the blue quiet morning and the white moon-sky . . . .
Yet have I heard no sound mightier
Than the sun shattering the night
On thy stone shoulder, Cavilano;
Yet have I seen no sight more wonderful and fair
Than the coming of the light,
When Day, the silver-winged gull, down-swooping finds the sea;
Yet have I known no thing sweeter, stronger,
Than the smell of piney winds and blue rippling sea-water.
And the kindness of Kunae-Kia, the living One,
Waking the heart of the old chief
To another dawn of life."

CARMEL

A Big Time

"The days of old,
The days of gold,
The days of '49"

Were vividly re-enacted at the spacious Boke residence last Saturday night by a throng of Carmel young folks and their friends, attired in the picturesque costumes of the period. Long knives, six-shooters, spurs, soft shirts and bandana handkerchiefs were much in evidence. A typical mining town bar did a thriving business in soda pop and ginger ale—everybody "likered up." About the walls were posted signs, some of which read:

"Off with your spurs before you gallop on this floor."

"Grammar school for boys between 18 and 45 opens Monday."

"The sky is the limit."

"$5000 reward for Bill Overstreet for libeling 'The Private Secretary' cast."

"Don't flirt with the spiders! This is no bug house."

"Beware of the Vampire of Carmel Gulch."

The following was thar:

Bonnie Hale, Grace Wickham, Katharine Cooke, Jeannette Hoagland, Mabel Morrell, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Heron, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Van Riper, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Overstreet, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Criley, Mr. and Mrs. James Worthington, Mrs. Frances Montgomery, Mrs. Zonia Vaselioff, Mrs. Andrew Stewart, Mrs. Philip Wilson, Mrs. J. N. Hilliard, Marion, Eliot and Richard Boke, Sadie Van Brower, Pardow Hooper, W. G. Moffat, Clarence Risley, Langley Howard, James Witson, E. W. Hedges, F. W. Mahl, Gordon Davis, Ernest Schweninger, Geo. J. Seideneck, Talbert Josselyn, Helen and Hilda Hilliard, Elizabeth and Maryan Hopper.
